Alison acts for companies, government entities, directors and other individuals across a broad range of matters. Those matters include class actions, regulatory investigations, judicial review proceedings, breach of contract cases, negligence claims and consumer law proceedings.

Before coming to the Bar, Alison was a Senior Associate at Herbert Smith Freehills where she specialised in class actions and other large-scale disputes for clients in the government, financial services and life sciences sectors. Alison also previously worked as a solicitor at Clayton Utz in the litigation team and at the UK Government Legal Department in the public law litigation division.

She was an Associate to the Honourable Justice John Griffiths at the Federal Court of Australia.

Alison was educated at the London School of Economics (Master of Laws with Distinction) and the University of Melbourne (Juris Doctor, Bachelor of Arts).

Alison is a monitor of publications by the Commercial Bar Association of the Victorian Bar in the area of competition and consumer law.

Alison read with Fiona Batten. Her senior mentor is Wendy Harris KC.
