Maya acts in trial and appellate litigation in all federal and state jurisdictions, appearing both led and unled. Maya has a complex and varied advisory practice, providing advice on diverse and often novel questions. Maya has particular expertise advising in the context of royal commissions and other public inquiries (including as to the establishment, obligations, powers and procedures of such inquiries), having acted in numerous inquiries both at, and prior to coming to, the Bar.

In August 2023, Maya was appointed by the Attorney-General for Victoria as a member of the Panel of Independent Reviewers under the Legal Aid Act 1978 (Vic), a role involving independent merits review of decisions made under that Act.

Prior to coming to the Bar, Maya was:

Counsel Assisting the Solicitor-General for Victoria (then Richard Niall QC, now the Chief Justice of Victoria);

Associate to the Honourable Justice O'Callaghan of the Federal Court of Australia (assisting his Honour with matters across commercial, bankruptcy and insolvency, industrial, administrative and migration law practice areas); and a Principal Solicitor in the Constitution and Advice Team and the Chair of the Constitutional and Intergovernmental Relations Practice Group at the Victorian Government Solicitor's Office.

Maya is a Director of the Board of Directors of List G Barristers and a Reporter for the Victorian Reports.

Maya read with Emrys Nekvapil and her senior mentor was Rowena Orr KC (now a Judge of Appeal of the Supreme Court of Victoria).
